The mounted clubs of the County are especially requested to meet at Townville on next Friday morning, the 25th inst., at 10 o'clock a. m. Captains of companies within reach of this point are urged to respond to this call, as it is a matter of importance that a full turn out be had at the joint meeting to be held there at that time.

We are informed that the number articles entered for exhibition at the County Fair, which commences to-day, is very large, and all that is necessary to render it a decided success is that all should feel interest enough to give it their attendance. We hope the people of the County will give it their warm support by attending on Thursday and Friday of the present week.

Mrs. McSmith, proprietress of the reliable McSmith Music House, of Greenville, S. C., has on exhibition at the Fair this week two pianos and six organs, which are attracting considerable attention. This is an entirely new feature in our County Fair, and adds a great deal both to the interest of the exhibition and the pleasure of those present. We hope those of our readers who expect to buy either organs or pianos will examine the instrument and prices of this house before purchasing.

The Fall Session of Hunter's Spring Academy, under the efficient care of Rev. J. C. Hudson, will close on Friday, 1st of November. The morning will be spent in sprightly review exercises in the presence of the patrons, and will doubtless be entertaining. At 2 o'clock p. m. an address will be delivered on the subject of education by some gentleman selected for that purpose. Mr. J. S. Murray, Jr., will be present to call attention to the school books approved by the State Board of Education, and will offer very low for introduction. Let it be an enthusiastic educational meeting.

We regret to chronicle the death of another of Anderson's aged and respectable citizens, Mr. Jacob Mouchet, of Savannah township, which occurred on last Friday, 18th inst., in the 83d year of his age. Mr. Mouchet was born and raised in Abbeville County, and removed to Anderson County about the year 1832, where he has since resided. He was an honest, upright citizen, attended strictly to his own business and had the respect and confidence of all who came in contact with him. He was a faithful soldier in the war of 1812, and has long been a consistent member of the Methodist Church. An aged wife and three children mourn his death.

A brand new Knappe piano at the Fair. Carved legs and pedal, and rosewood case. $300 will buy a genuine new Knappe piano. Call on Mr. and Mrs. McSmith.

SHALLOW FORD, Oct. 22.
The dwelling-house of Mr. Taylor Hatcher, who lives on Mr. N. O. Farmer's place, was consumed by fire yesterday afternoon while Mr. Hatcher and his family were away. The fire was discovered in time to save almost all the goods, and in time to ascertain that the fire had ignited first in the back part of the house, which fact leads to the supposition that the burning was incendiary, though why this could be is somewhat a mystery, as Mr. Hatcher is at variance with no one. On leaving the house, the family had closed the doors, and as one of them was standing open when the fire was discovered, it is surmised that a thief had been committed, and the house fired to conceal it.

Qui Vive.
The members of the Red Shirt Company are requested to meet in the Square at Pendleton on Friday, 25th October, at 8:30 a. m. on important business.

By order of the Captain.
JOHN A. H. BRINSON, O. S.

When Don Pedro was making his tour of observation in America, he made a note of the fact that Dr. HARTER'S FEVER AND AGUE SPECIFIC was, under all conditions, a safe and certain cure for Chills and Fever.

ANDERSON'S BUSINESS HOUSES.

We continue this week the sketch of the business houses of Anderson who advertise in our columns. Last week we neglected to mention manufacturer and repairer of harness, who can be found over the store of Bleckley, Brown & Co. He is fully prepared this season to accommodate his customers with the very best of everything in his line, and can always be found in his office. Next in order is

ARNSTEIN & ROSE, proprietors of the New York Cash Store, where can be found everything in the dry goods line from a pin to the handsomest silk dress. They have the largest stock of dry goods in the up country, and sell at low prices, by which means they have established for themselves an enviable trade and reputation. For a full description of their stock, see advertisement. Next door is the reliable firm of

BARR & FANT, dealers in general merchandise, who are always busy receiving and selling goods. The reputation of this house for just-dealing is widespread and well established, and we can assure our readers that they will do what is right and honorable with those who patronize them. Over this store can be found

J. B. CLARK & SONS, merchant tailors, who are better prepared than ever to please their patrons. They are well known as first-class tailors, whose charges are moderate. The Singer sewing machine, one of the best ever made, is also sold by them.

SULLIVAN & CO. occupy the next store, and are making special effort this season to extend and enlarge their already extensive business. Heavy dry goods and groceries are their specialties, and everything is just what it is represented to be. They are agents for Tozer's engine, an excellent cotton gin and Cook's evaporator and mill.

G. P. TOLLY'S furniture store is especially attractive at present, as he has a larger stock of furniture on hand than usual, which he offers to the public at very low figures. He makes a very small profit on his goods, and cannot be undersold by any dealer in the State. We next come to the establishment of

CUNNINGHAM & CO., where you can find almost any thing you want, especially in the grocery line, both heavy and fancy. Dry goods, etc., are also kept, and everything is sold strictly for cash, which enables them to put their goods at very low prices. They are also agents for the popular Avery plows, harrows and cultivators. A few doors above this store will be found

MCCULLY & TAYLOR, who are always courteous and accommodating to their customers. General supplies for planters and farmers are always kept, and those desiring anything in their line would do well to give them a call. They are agents for the Georgia Grange guano, Pratt's revolving head gin and a fire insurance company. Passing up this row we find at McCully's Corner

J. B. CLARK & SONS, merchant tailors, established, where the public have long since learned that they will be honorably and justly dealt with. Their stock of goods' furnishing goods is complete, and their tailoring is done by experienced workmen. They are agents for the Wilson sewing machine, which is sold at reasonable figures. Just across Main street, in the east end of the Waverly House, you will find

C. A. REED, AGENT, dealer in general merchandise, who is well and favorably known to the trading public of Anderson and adjoining counties. He keeps a complete stock of buggy material on hand, and is agent for the American sewing machine, which has been reduced in price in proportion to other machines. A few doors further down we come to the new store of

W. A. CHAPMAN, who recently opened out a large and completely stocked dry goods, notions, etc., at the old stand of the Emporium of Fashion, which he is disposing of at prices to suit the times. He is an energetic and thorough-going merchant, and we hope will receive a liberal share of the public patronage.

A. W. TODD, architect, contractor and builder, can be found in the Waverly House, when not engaged, and will take pleasure in submitting plans for buildings and contracting for the erection of the same. Our next point is the LADIES' STORE, of which Miss Lizzie Williams & Co. are proprietors. This house has long been known to the people of Anderson County, and needs no words of commendation from us. Special efforts are made to please the ladies, and to what extent success has attended these efforts the public are fully acquainted. At No. 4 on the same range, we find the jewelry store and photograph gallery of

J. D. MAXWELL, where everything is bright and beautiful. A large lot of jewelry, silver ware and silver plated ware, spectacles, etc., are offered very cheap for the cash. Capt. Wren is still in charge of the picture gallery, and the repairing of watches and jewelry is attended to by an experienced artist.

J. E. PEOPLES still occupies his old stand, and is just as busy as ever. He has a large lot of stores and tin ware on hand, which he will either sell for the cash or barter for rags and raw hides. He is also dealer in printing and wrapping paper, which is sold at manufacturers' prices. Next in order comes

SIMPSON, REID & CO., dealers in drugs, medicines, chemicals, etc., which they sell at the lowest market price. Prescriptions are filled promptly by experienced druggists, and all orders receive immediate attention. Chemicals for preparing fertilizers can be found here at low cash prices. We next come to the millinery store of MISS DELLA KEYS, in the Centennial House, where she will be pleased to accommodate her friends and customers. Her goods are both cheap and reliable, and charges for mantua-making, stamping and plaiting are reasonable.

JAMES ANDERSON, in the east end of Masonic Hall, has a complete stock of confectioneries, cigars, etc., on hand, and as he sells strictly for cash, he is enabled to give good bargains. When anything in his line is wanted, be sure to call and examine his stock and prices before purchasing.

This concludes the list of business men in Anderson who have availed themselves of our columns to reach the trading public of this and adjoining counties. While it does not include all, it comprises by far the majority of leading business houses of our town, and those who have goods to buy will find it to their interest and profit to examine their goods before purchasing elsewhere. Nearly all of these firms buy cotton, for which they pay the very highest market price, and challenge any merchants in upper South Carolina to excel them either in high prices for cotton and other country produce or low prices for reliable and substantial goods.

GRAND DEMOCRATIC RALLY AT HONEA PATH.

The Banner Section of the Banner County Alliance with Enthusiasm—Abundance of Speeches and Dinner—Forty Candidates as Masters of Ceremony—"All Things are Lovely," &c.

The meeting arranged for Honea Path by the State Executive Committee, on the 16th inst., brought about twenty-five hundred people out, and proved a splendid success. A large mounted escort met the speakers at the depot and followed them to the place of meeting of all the mounted clubs, from which place the line of march was taken up.

There were about six hundred mounted men in red and blue shirts, (under the special charge of Gen. W. W. Humphreys, Marshal of the day,) who made a most imposing cavalcade as they proceeded through the town.

The stand was most beautifully decorated with flowers, evergreens, &c. In the center was the picture of Gov. Hampton, the guardian angel of South Carolina. The stand, the seats, &c., were arranged, as Honea Path always arranges such matters, in the best of style, and what was still better, there was a splendid audience of ladies and gentlemen.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. A. C. Stepp, and the President of the Club, Dr. T. A. Hudson, introduced Hon. J. N. Lipscomb, Senator from Newberry. He made a most capital speech. He said he was very sorry, indeed, that he was the only representative present of the speakers ordered there by the State Executive Committee. But that the people need not fear but that they would have speeches enough, as the whole face of the earth was covered with candidates, not only willing to speak, but, if the people were willing, to spend or be spent for their dear constituency. The candidate was an anomaly in nature—the most patriotic, pains-taking, pleasing man in the world; that was a great pity that some persons were not candidates all their lives, it made such improvement in them. He complimented Anderson highly on her thorough Democracy and splendid organization, and said that he would feel that he was guilty of great impropriety were he to talk to her people about Democracy. He read in the earnest faces before him determination to win. Success was an absolute necessity, and must be had at any cost. He addressed a considerable portion of his remarks to the colored people, of whom there were many present. He told them that the white people owed them a debt of gratitude for their good behavior during the war when the men were all out of the country. That the white man and the colored man should live in peace and harmony if they expected to succeed. That if a conflict of race was brought on the colored man must be destroyed. That the Anglo-Saxon race had never since the world began set its foot on a country that it had not been masters of. He scorched the carpet-bagger, who came down here and set the negroes against the white people—these were thieves, liars, scoundrels, &c. Here a negro was pointed out to him as a Radical. He said, "I'd trust him with my smoke-house key, and I would not trust Charleston with it." He told them that the people need not expect to see the taxes reduced until the Constitution was changed. That taxes were not so high now, compared with other States, but that we were so poor the only way he knew how to reduce taxes was to make more property, then it would take a proportionally less tax to raise the required amount. What we want is immigration of capital and labor. He told the colored people that the only way they could expect to have a part control of this State government was to come into the Democratic party, and then not expect office because he was black, but because he was entitled to it. White men did not ask office because they were white, but they appealed to their character, qualification and record, and that was what they must do if they expect to get office. His speech was frequently interrupted by bursts of applause.

The Chairman then introduced Hon. R. W. Simpson. He briefly reviewed the campaign of 1876, saying that it was the most glorious effort that a great people ever made for freedom; that the annals of history never showed an instance of such patriotic perseverance and grand devotion to principle as the campaign of '76, and that we owed most of that enthusiasm and ultimate success not to the men who wore the red shirts or cast the ballots on the 7th November so much as to the noble women of South Carolina, who incited and encouraged them. He then showed what the difference was between our present condition and that under Republican rule, making a glowing picture and eloquent appeal for effort and determination in this election. He rejoined the unity of the Democratic party in this critical period is a worst enemy to South Carolina and to civilization than all the Radicals in the State. His speech was well received, and the advice given exceedingly appropriate.

Col. Jas. L. Orr was next introduced. He said that State matters had been so thoroughly discussed in the two excellent speeches just made that he did not think there was room left for him to speak to them on that subject. He called attention to the fact that South Carolina could never have perfect freedom and uncontrolled independence as long as the Republican party was in power in National matters. The tendency of that party since its inception has been to solidify and strengthen the National government at the expense of the State power. Centralization was what he had to fear more than anything else. Does it take instances to demonstrate this? Look at the history of a few events since the war. Mattison had wantonly murdered an innocent and unoffending citizen in a few miles of this place, and yet by the United States Courts had been taken from the hands of the law, and not only set free, but given employment by the United States government. When the Board of State Censors had utterly disregarded the commands of the Supreme Court of this State, and been committed for contempt, they were released in a most illegal and unheard of manner by a United States Judge. Only the other day four men in Pickens county wantonly murdered Amos Ladd, and yet the State Courts have been defied and these men turned loose on society unwhipped of justice, with their hands actually reeking with innocent human blood. As long as the Republican party have control of National affairs such outrages on law and justice will be perpetrated. So he charged them to be careful to send a solid Democratic delegation to Washington. He then addressed the colored people on their advantages under Democratic rule; the protection of life, liberty and property; the improvement in the management of the free school system, whereby the schools are open eight instead of two months in the year.

After this speech a recess of one hour was announced for dinner, and it took up the whole time for the twenty-five hundred persons present to do nothing but the good thing which the hospitable Honea Path people spread before them.

After dinner speeches were made by Dr. Brown, Maj. E. B. Murray, Hon. H. R. Vandiver, Mr. B. F. Crayton and Col. E. M. Rucker, all of whom were first-class, but your reporter's paper gave out before he got to them, and so they were not reported. Allen Hamilton, a colored Democrat from Donald's, made a ranting speech, which received more attention and applause than all the others combined. He advised the darkies to "change their life" and join the Democrats as he had done.

The meeting was well regulated, orderly, and eminently satisfactory to the people of Honea Path and to the Democracy of Anderson, Abbeville, Laurens and Greenville there assembled.
